Paediatric Precision Medicine:
Advancing research and patient care

7-8 November
UNSW Sydney

INVITATION

We invite you to partner with us at this year's Luminesce Alliance 2024 Conference - Paediatric Precision Medicine: Advancing Research and Patient Care.

Scheduled over two days on the 7th and 8th of November 2024 and held at UNSW Sydney, Australia, the Luminesce Alliance Conference aims to share research innovations across the Alliance, fostering horizon-scanning discussions in the translation of precision medicine into our health systems.

Luminesce Alliance is a not-for-profit cooperative joint venture between the Sydney Children's Hospitals Network, the Children's Medical Research Institute, the Children's Cancer Institute, the University of Sydney, and UNSW, established with the support of the NSW Government. Our extensive networks bring together a wide range of researchers and clinicians including post-graduate students, early career researchers, nurses, allied healthcare workers, as well as government and the MedTech and Pharma industries.

Together, we look forward to exploring the latest developments in basic, translational, and clinical research concerning children and families grappling with rare genetic diseases and cancers.

Kathryn Griener AO
Luminesce Alliance Chair

We have a vision to change children's medicine around the world and we are working at a scale that ensures considerable cost savings and resource sharing. That enables clinicians to drive the research agenda for researchers to have support for the rapid clinical adoption of their work.

The conference program will cover:

- Paediatric precision medicine translational research, showcasing the research across the Luminesce Alliance Paediatric Precision Medicine Enabling Platforms Program. Delegates will gain insights from leading experts on the latest progress, advances, and innovations in research, trials, and commercial development opportunities on a national and international scale.
- Innovative pathways to strengthen collaboration among clinicians, scientists, researchers, industry, and the Health and Innovation Precincts for effective research translation.
- Discussions on effectively implementing quality, evidence-based precision medicine models into the health care system.
- Opportunities to increase and enhance community participation in paediatric precision medicine activities.
- The achievements of young investigators will also be honoured.

Who attends?

This conference will be marketed to a large researcher and health services audience through the extensive partner networks of Luminesce Alliance, as well as collaborators across other medical research institutes, local health districts, the two health and innovation precincts, and government and consumer groups.

The Luminesce Alliance 2024 Conference is expected to attract over 200 delegates, including:

- early career researchers
- mid-senior career researchers
- post-graduate students
- clinician-researchers
- clinicians
- clinical trial specialists

Precision medicine offers a transformational approach to healthcare. It begins with a unique partnership between clinicians and researchers, working together to go beyond offering a diagnosis, to developing potential new treatments, and even cures, that can help children both now and in the future.

You cannot overstate the impact that genomic precision medicine is going to have on the whole of medicine. Its earliest major impacts are in inherited diseases of childhood and cancer, but it will spread quite rapidly throughout adult medicine. There is almost no aspect of medicine that will not ultimately be transformed by genomic precision medicine.
